

28th EUROPEAN CONFERENCE
ON PHILOSOPHY OF MEDICINE AND HEALTH CARE

Bioethics and Bio-politics

27 – 30 August, 2014
Debrecen, Hungary

This conference will be organised by the European Society for Philosophy of Medicine and Healthcare (ESPMH) and the Department of Behavioural Sciences, University of Debrecen, Hungary.

Focus

The term “bio-politics” is either used as a philosophical or sociological term referring to the works of Negri, Agamben, Rose, or Foucault, who focused on the contemporary style of governing populations through bio-power, or as an umbrella concept referring to public policies regarding applications of biotechnology and the life sciences. Both usages suggest, that bio-politics is a central concept for modern societies. At the same time bioethics has become increasingly interdisciplinary and ever more politicized. Bioethical issues figure in presidential campaigns and parliamentary elections. Bioethicists are advisors for governments and frame recommendations for public policies. Bioethics and bio-politics have become deeply interwoven activities.

If bioethics and bio-politics are highly interwoven, then how should we understand their relationship? Does politics corrupt bioethics? How does bioethics affect policy-making? How has bioethics been affected by its role in policy-making?

Abstracts addressing these issues in the following topics will be favoured, although work on other topics can also be submitted:

Getting to Debrecen

By train

Debrecen lies on the No. 100 line of Budapest-Szolnok-Debrecen-Nyíregyháza-Záhony direction, not incidental therefore that this is one of the most developed railway junctions of the country. At the same time, Debrecen also enables international transportation by train to Romania, Ukraine and Slovakia as well. The MÁV (Magyar Államvasutak, Hungarian State Railway Company) supports the major lines with InterCity (IC) trains.

From Debrecen to Budapest and back at least 1 Inter City train per hour is available in the 6 h – 20 h period every day. For time tables see <http://www.elvira.hu/english/index.php>

By air

Directly to Debrecen Airport: Wizzair currently operates international flights from London Luton (4 days/week), and also from Eindhoven (2 days/week). Germania operates occasional flights from Berlin. More flights are announced from March 2014 (<http://www.debreceenairport.com/?lang=en>).

Indirectly: via Budapest- Liszt Ferenc (BUD) International Airport <http://www.bud.hu/english>. The old name of the airport is Ferihegy. It serves a great number of international airlines. From Budapest Airport take bus number 200E to Ferihegy train station (20 min.) where you can take an intercity train to Debrecen.

From Budapest Airport to Debrecen it is advisable to make an online reservation for a shuttle service. For example:

By car

From Budapest, the M3 continues as the M35 highway directly leading to Debrecen. The journey from the capital takes approximately 2-2,5 hours. Other regional centres can easily be reached from Debrecen: you can reach Miskolc and Nyíregyháza – and through these Slovakia and the Ukraine – on highways M35 and M3, or M30. Debrecen is also a gate to Romania, which can be reached directly on road No. 47 via the border town of Ártánd.

Currency

The currency in Debrecen is the Hungarian Forint (HUF). Foreign currency can be easily exchanged at banks or exchange offices. Visa and Master cards are widely accepted. ATMs can be found at several places both in the city centre and in the campus area. Some shops accept Euro banknotes as well.

Visa

Please contact your local consulate for details.

Social Programme

The following social activities will be offered:

- Welcome reception on Wednesday (27 August)
- Conference dinner on Friday (29 August)
- Excursions and tours for participants and accompanying persons for an extra fee.

Abstract Booklet

All participants will be provided with a Programme & Venue information booklet and with an Abstract Booklet. Both will be handed out in Debrecen at registration. Full manuscripts can be submitted for publication in the ESPMH journal "Medicine, Health Care and Philosophy. A European Journal". Participants are invited to read the instructions for authors on the website of the Journal (see MEPH) and to submit an appropriately prepared article online for review.

About Hungary

You can find all information at <http://gotohungary.com/>

About Debrecen

Debrecen is the second largest city of Hungary with its 200.000 inhabitants. Famous for its university and spas and the old Calvinist College (1538). It hosts some internationally acknowledged museum collections and a recently established trendy museum for modern arts. It has a good public transport, and a relaxed atmosphere. Further information can be found at <http://eng.debrecen.hu/> or <http://www.debrecencity.com/en>

University of Debrecen

The university is the second largest in Hungary, it has 800 PhD students, 30.000 undergraduate and graduate students, and 2400 international students from 46 countries. The Medical and Health Sciences Center of the University houses also one of the largest and best hospital facilities in Hungary. Further information can be found at <http://www.unideb.hu/portal/en>

Department of Behavioral Sciences, Medical and Health Sciences Center

The Department was established in 1997. It has an extensive educational role in the Center, focusing on medical psychology, anthropology, sociology, ethics and philosophy. The Department hosts the Hungarian Working Group for the Cambridge Consortium on Bioethics Education (www.mti.deoec.hu/bomm) and gives editorial support to Meditor, a Hungarian journal for applied ethics. Ongoing research activities within philosophy of medicine and bioethics include the ethical issues in disasters, publication ethics and scientific integrity, therapeutic misconception and the ethics of clinical trials, medicalization, paternalism and end-of-life issues.
